

OPERA GARNIER

Opera Garnier is one of the most important magnificent and architectural buildings in Paris. It takes the name from its architect, Charles Garnier. Building was completed in 1875. It has a historical importance because Napolian III was tried to be killed by anarchists there. Later Napolian III wanted to renew Opera so he organized a competition to choose the architect and Charles Garnier was the winner. 20 million golden franc was spent to renew the building. Its height is 73,60 m and its width is 173 m. According to me, if you visit Paris, Opera Granier should be your first destination. You can feel dizzy because of its fascinating beauty.

Lori BALCIYAN

11 th grade